This question should be asked by an experienced technician or mechanic. It will be the last thing you do. ; NThe interface of this . Westinghouse Refrigerator User Manual A model line like the Westinghouse WBTS-1 (top mount) uses a rear water pump that is mounted at the bottom of the refrigerator cabinet and a freon type R-134A refrigerant circulates in the system. The central unit has a water and refrigerant sensor to sense whether the freon R-134A refrigerant is present or not. If the compressor is run, the refrigerant gas will be pressurized which makes it difficult to drain and release the gas. For this reason, the system will be checked to make sure that the valve for the refrigerant is in the shut position. A technician will start the compressor, which will depressurize the system. At that point, the drain valve will be removed from the drain port and the refrigerant gas will be drained out of the system.Q: How to add a second texture to a picturebox in a loop using C# In my code I need to add a texture to the pictures inside a picturebox.
